I have considered the cold eastening as continued until as late as 17h, which would imply probably that until that hour the cold region was east of St. Petersburg. It is very difficult to speak, even in a general manner, of the places or times of things so little identified as yet, as the warm and cold regions in the upper atmosphere; but referring to the temperatures on the earth at St. Petersburg, I may point out, that the extreme cold is, in the month of January, as late as 19 and 20 o'clock, and five hours later than it is in the summer months. I may also point out here, for use in the summer months, that the maximum heat varies three hours in the opposite direction; so that whilst from the highest to the lowest temperature in the day is only eleven hours in summer, it is nineteen hours in winter, as may be seen by the Temperature Table, p. 271. As the day comes on, therefore, in January the highest temperature is only five hours after the lowest, which accords generally with the assumed cause of the effects on the needle¹. 3012. As I am endeavouring to make St. Petersburg a general case of night action for the explanation of corresponding effects at other places, so I may notice that the night action must contain a portion of sun effect which combines with that of the cold. The action...
