Parrys statement (Chemistry of Essential Oils) that--SSS--8SS may be taken as including most good commercial otto, must be received with some caution, as it would exclude some of the finest otto and admit much that is doubtful. . . . The optical rotation varies between--2 15and--315. The writer goes on to state that though the freezing-point is almost the only standard employed by the Bulgarian merchants, their method of determining the setting-point leads to uncertain and varying results. He regards the ester percentage as capable of affording useful information, as the ester in true otto is very low, about 3-0 per cent, , while in Palma-rosa oil it averages about 10 per cent, E. M. Holmes (P. J....
